Important notes*

The aircraft will only be deregistered once the Office is in possession of the originals of the Certificate of Registration and the Certificate of Airworthiness. Before an Export Certificate of Airworthiness can be issued, an official Conformity Inspection has to be performed on the aircraft. The operator should schedule this inspection with the Office in good time. Once the aircraft has been deregistered the Office will no longer be able to issue statements and certificates relating to this aircraft. If the aircraft is to be exported, the relevant customs authorities must be contacted. Fees will apply in accordance with the Ordinance of 28 September 2007 on fees levied by the Federal Office of Civil Aviation (SR 748.112.11).
